It's a star-studded ball

GUEST of honour Governor Marie Bashir and husband Sir Nicholas Shehadie arrive for the glittering Diamond Ball, celebrating 60 years of the National Trust, at Old Government House, Parramatta. More than 140 people joined them to mark the successes, and some failures, in saving our heritage. ■ Full report and photos, pages 8-9

Boys' actions lauded

SARAH LAW

THE mature and quick-thinking actions of two boys from Blaxcell Street Public School at Granville allegedly saved two young girls from being harassed by a man.

Police have now urged parents to renew "stranger danger" warnings to children.

The two girls, aged eight and nine years, were within the school boundary when a man approached the front gate of the school about noon last Wednesday, April 6.

Police said that he asked the girls to come over to his vehicle and he would give them a lolly.

Crime co-ordinator at Rosehill Police Station Sergeant Matt Hull said police believe it was the verbal intervention of the Year 6 boys that scared the man away.

Police said the young boys called out for the man to identify himself which caused him to run to his car.

Sgt Hull said the incident is being investigated.

"The matter is being looked at by detectives at Rosehill Local Area Command," Sgt Hull said.

The man reportedly drove off in a maroon four-door Toyota Hilux and is described as of Middle Eastern appearance and being aged between 20 and 30 years old.

Police urge parents to tell their children not to speak to strangers, and if they are approached, to report the incident immediately.
